Crash may be due to weather: Investigators

SUDBURY The crash of a Piper PA-28 on Thanksgiving Saturday that killed four people in two Sudbury families, was not likely caused by a mechanical failure, said John Cotteau, spokesman for the Transportation Safety Board yesterday.

Investigators are looking into the role of a weather system in the area the night the plane went down in a densely wooded section of Algonquin Park.

Ottawa Police Sgt. Jim Elves, centre, serves Ottawa Mission hospice resident Amanda Poulton at the shelter's community Thanksgiving dinner yesterday. Volunteers served 2,678 meals, including 2,300 pounds of oven roasted turkey, 15 pans of stuffing, 600 pounds of baked ham, mashed potatoes, carrots, beans and pies.

Mission's 'special time'

Thanksgiving about sharing, not just need: Shelter spokeswoman

TRACEY TONG
tracy.tong@metronews.ca

Peter Lacey has been living at the Ottawa Mission for the past two years.

And while he already eats almost all of his meals at the shelter, he was excited for yesterday's annual community Thanksgiving dinner.

"It's a special time when you can get everyone together," he said. "I see people smiling and socializing and enjoying their meals."

"Everyone is here and everyone is getting along. That's why this day is so special. It's like we're all one family."

Margaret Susie King lives alone, and comes to the mission once or twice a year for holiday meals.

"(Thanksgiving) is a time when people should have company," she said.

The shelter served 2,678 meals yesterday, said shelter spokeswoman Shirley Roy.

While generally, the mission has seen more people coming for meals in the past year, Thanksgiving dinner isn't just about need.

"People are coming because they're hungry, but they want to share their meal with others. It's a fes...tive atmosphere," Roy said.

As usual, the meal wouldn't be possible without the 110 volunteers who came out yesterday, Roy said.

Several years ago, Ottawa resident Lindsay Hepburn was on the brink of retirement and was looking for a way to give back to the community.

Hepburn began volunteering at the mission's special events and in the kitchen on Tuesday mornings.

"It's a joy to see people in need getting fed," he said. "And you can tell the vast majority of these people are very appreciative."

Volunteering at holiday meals has become tradition for Ottawa police, said Sgt. Jim Elves. This year, about a dozen officers participated.

"This is a chance for us to informally talk to some of the people, he said. "It humanizes us, and they really appreciate it."

Insp. Alain Bernard said, "For me, I think this sets the tone for this time of year, of giving back."

Women, people in 30s, hard hit by H1N1: Study

Flu Outbreak

HEALTH A "striking" number of women are becoming seriously ill after contracting H1N1, according to a new study, and researchers admit they have no explanation.

Although it's been known that pregnant women — along with the young and elderly — are at increased risk, the authors of the report, Critically Ill Patients With 2009 Influenza A (H1N1) Infection in Canada, write: "The tendency of females to develop severe 2009 Influenza A (H1N1) infection in this series is striking."

About 67 per cent of the cases under study in the Canadian report were women. The study found that, in one survey of 168 critically ill patients, 29 died, the majority in two weeks. The majority of the deaths, 72 per cent, were women.

The authors of the Critically Ill report also found that Canadians in their 30s are most susceptible to contracting H1N1, and stress that, once admitted to hospital, they require rapid admission to critical care and aggressive treatment.

The study was published yesterday in the Journal of the American Medical Association. TORSTAR NEWS SERVICE

ATU to see retroactive wage rise

As a result of the arbitration decision that ended the 53-day transit strike this past winter, OC Transpo management will be able to set drivers' work schedules. Members of the Amalgamated Transit Union will see wage increases retroactive to 3.25 per cent for 2008, 2.5 per cent for 2009 and 2.5 per cent for 2010 – which, according to the city, are the same increases that were given to the city's other large unions in bargaining.

That's a wrap for Fall Rhapsody

TIM WIECLAWSKI

A week after four-year-old Tarah Grout was born, her parents bundled her up and took her out for a walk among the autumn leaves on the Champlain Trail in Gatineau Park.

Since then, Tarah and her parents, Bethany Harpur and Chris Grout, have spent part of each Thanksgiving Monday in Gatineau Park.

Yesterday, the Ottawa family was among hundreds of people taking in the last day of Fall Rhapsody at the Mackenzie King Estate.

"It's a good time to come out. The colours are beautiful. The weather is usually really nice. It's just a nice opportunity to step out of the city and relax out here," said Chris Grout. "It's much prettier in the fall, and it's a nice tradition that we've started," Harpur added.

Traffic and parking are usually a challenge on the Thanksgiving Monday, said Grout. In previous years, many of the free parking lots through the park were full. Melissa Landel, her husband, Israel Martinez, and their 17-month-old daughter Ema also came.

"We've been to the park before but never to the estate," said Landel.

Deportation numbers soar

Increase seen in last decade

Deportations from Canada have skyrocketed more than 50 per cent over the last decade and the bulk of those given the boot are failed refugee claimants who may return home to face torture and persecution.

Figures obtained by The Canadian Press through Access to Information show Canada removed 12,732 people last year — a major increase from the 8,361 who were deported in 1999.

A series of steady increases over the years shows no sign of abating in 2009. By Aug. 25 of this year, 8,999 had already been deported.

failed refugee claimants accounted for three-quarters of deportations while the remainder were often removed on criminal or security grounds.

The most common deportation destinations are the U.S. and Mexico, though hundreds more are being sent to places with shoddy track records on human rights or security, like China, Pakistan and Haiti.

Commons Speaker marks milestone

OTTAWA Peter Milliken's job might be compared to herding cats, but he's done it longer than anyone in Canadian history.

Milliken is the Speaker of the House of Commons and, as of yesterday, he held the job for 3,178 days, surpassing the tenure of Lucien Lamoureux, a Trudeau-era Speaker.

While few people are likely to recognize the name, they'll likely know the face. On the evening news clips from the Commons, he's the white-haired chap in the black robe trying to keep the exasperation from his voice as he tries to calm a raucous question period.

The 62-year-old MP from Kingston, Ont., was elected the 34th Speaker on Jan. 29, 2001, and has since been acclaimed once and re-elected twice to the post.

It's a tough job. He has to cut himself off from his own party and caucus to avoid any perception of bias. He must maintain order among 307 often-fractious MPs. He has to handle his own constituency work, like any other MP.

He's basically the chief executive officer of Parliament, overseeing budgets and operations for the Commons and the various buildings that make up the parliamentary precinct.

"It's very demanding, time-wise," he said. "You start reasonably early in the morning and you go fairly late at night every day."

U.S. insurance industry targets health care bill

Legislation would raise costs, report claims

U.S. insurance companies aren't playing nice any more on the health care overhaul.

The industry put out a report yesterday concluding that the Senate's health care legislation would drive up costs to consumers, delivering a dire message at a crucial point in the debate and potentially threatening President Barack Obama's top domestic priority.

The White House and congressional Democrats dismissed the late-incoming message as a "hatchet job." But it put them and their allies on the defensive a day ahead of a pivotal vote in the Senate Finance Committee on sweeping legislation that aims to achieve Obama's goals of extending coverage to the uninsured and curbing spiraling medical costs.

"I really don't think it's worth the paper it's written on," AARP Executive Vice-President John Rother said

Rebutal to report

• Democrats and their allies criticized the report as biased. Health economist Len Nichols of the New America Foundation contended that, among other problems, the study failed to take into account the impact of subsidies that would help low- and middle-income people buy coverage. He said it also left out a key expected impact of a proposed new tax on high-value insurance plans, which is a reduction in the use of health services.

Monday of the insurance industry report. "If anyone believes it, that's a problem."

The study commissioned by America's Health Insurance Plans marked a shift in strategy by the industry, which had been working for months behind the scenes to help shape health care legislation. With the Senate panel set to vote on legislation the industry fears could result in a loss of revenue, the insurers went on the attack, in dramatic fashion.

Late Sunday, AHIP sent reporters and its member companies a new accounting firm study that projects the legislation would add $1,700 a year to the cost of family coverage in 2013, when most of the major provisions in the bill would be in effect.

Premiums for a single person would go up by $600 more than would be the case without the legislation, the PricewaterhouseCoopers analysis concluded in the study commissioned by the insurance group.

The industry said the cost increases would result from new taxes and from a weakening of the penalties for failing to get insurance — a change that would let Americans postpone getting coverage until they get sick.

Bob Rae waiting at the Grit gates

NationalReport

Lawrence Martin

metronews.ca/nationalreport

One of Michael Ignatieff's close caucus supporters said to me the other day, "We're still supporting Michael, but Bob Rae has gained our trust."

He went on to list some of the reasons he and others now have more faith in Rae than Iggy. At the Sudbury party meeting last month, Rae got it right. He was saying, behind the scenes, that Iggy should not be pushing for an election because it would make him look just as the Conservative attack ads were depicting him — an opportunist. Iggy didn't take Rae's advice. He vowed to bring down the government as soon as possible. But the gambit has done more to bring him down than the prime minister. Caucus members now say they will undercut any order by Iggy to defeat the government by conveniently being absent on voting day.

In June, Ignatieff's team was pressing for a summer election. Rae cautioned against such a move, saying the party wasn't ready and summer wasn't the time. But the leader came out sounding hawkish, ready to go. Then he suddenly pulled back when told his party wasn't financially ready. He looked feckless in so doing.

The far more experienced Rae has told associates he is not happy with Ignatieff's handling of the job. A participant at morning meetings with the leader and some MPs says Rae's performance there has been noticeably less enthusiastic in recent times.

On the weekend, Rae had to come forward to deny he orchestrated a move by a group of Liberal senators to amend a crime bill, a bill that Ignatieff was supporting.

As common sense would suggest, Rae, who fell short in a couple of runs for the crown, still has leadership ambitions. He can protest that he is being loyal, that he is doing nothing to encourage his supporters. But with the party in a free fall, disgruntled caucus members are going to talk and journalists are going to listen.

The last thing the Liberals need at this point is a new outbreak of leadership feuding. But unless Ignatieff reverses his slide, that's what they'll get.

Higher taxes may be the only solution

InBusiness

Charles Davies

metronews.ca/inbusiness

Read their lips: No new taxes. Stephen Harper's Conservatives and Michael Ignatieff's Liberals keep saying we can eliminate the federal deficit without raising taxes. Economic recovery is supposedly going to provide the tax revenues that, along with some cuts in program spending, will put the nation back in the black sometime after 2015. It will all be so gradual you won't really feel it.

Only children and incurably gentle folk are likely to be taken in by such mendacity. To get some idea of our current deficit problem and the choices we face, we should cast our minds back to 1993. The deficit that year came in at a then record $42 billion.

The newly elected Chrétien Liberals did indeed lick the deficit. Economic growth helped, but we shouldn't forget that the federal government whacked more than $12 billion from program spending over three years as well as chopping social transfer payments to the provinces.

This time, we have a deficit that's going to hit at least $56 billion. A slowly recovering economy won't readily generate additional tax revenues.

So what's a prime minister to do? Raise taxes, either in the form of GST points or personal levies. A minority government won't get away with it, but if a party wins a majority at the next election, higher taxes will likely be part of any deficit reduction package.

"Are you kidding me?
The big TV networks want me to pay up to an extra $120 a year to pad their profits?"

It's hard to believe Canada's big TV networks like CTV and Global are now asking the CRTC to impose a TV tax of up to $10/month on every cable and satellite subscriber in the country. Aren't these the same networks that made a combined total of almost $400 million in operating profit last year alone?

Come on Canada. Make your voice heard.

Stock markets surge

European and U.S. stock markets rose yesterday amid mounting hopes that third-quarter earnings results will provide further evidence that the world economy is enjoying a solid recovery.

Strong profits from Royal Philips Electronics NV, published earlier yesterday, helped fuel those hopes.

In Europe, the FTSE 100 of leading British shares rose to its highest level for over a year. By mid-afternoon London time, the FTSE was up 58.47 points, or 1.1 per cent, at 5,220.34 — that's the first time it has broken through the 5,200 barrier since September last year.

Meanwhile, Germany's DAX rose 83.12 points, or 1.5 per cent, to 5,795 while France's CAC-40 was 43.62 points, or 1.1 per cent,

This just in from the recession wars south of the border. Americans are turning to debit cards and away from credit cards, according to the Washington Post. The annualized decline of 8.1 percent in the use of credit is the first in decades and is matched by an increase in debit cards and cash for purchases.

But beware, even with debit cards and cash there are pitfalls. First of all, pernicious overdraft protection makes it almost as easy to tip into debt as with credit cards. And the protection comes at a price — 21 percent interest on the overdrawn balance plus a $5 fee for each overdrawn transaction is the average at the major banks, depending on your account. Carrying a balance on a low-interest credit card would actually be cheaper.

Additionally, debit card devotees can run up fees if you go over the transaction limit for your account. And don't forget, even with premium accounts there are usually charges for withdrawals at non-home bank machines, typically at least $1.50 each.

I often put the overdrawn, overdebited and overcharged on a cash diet for awhile, but long term it makes tracking spending difficult unless you are vigilant about recording purchases. You know how it goes, the machine spits out $100, it's gone within a day and you haven't a clue where it went.

Debit cards really are great tools if you avoid the fees and don't use overdraft protection. You can easily track your purchases every month which helps you stay on budget.

Make sure you check your balance regularly and stay on top of automatic debits.

Here's a tip: Add just those debits so they come out of your account a day or two after your paycheck is deposited. That way you won't get a false sense of riches when you see your balance.

Turning back to cash

As for cash, limit yourself to a set sum for incidentals; take out that money once a week and make sure it lasts until the next withdrawal.

Alison Griffiths is a financial journalist, author and host of Maxed Out on the W Network. Write to her at alison@alisongriffiths.ca.

Alison's Money Rule:

- Getting into the debit card and cash habit can help you break the credit card habit. But it only works if you know the pitfalls.

Debit cards really are great tools if you avoid the fees and don't use overdraft protection.

Pittsburgh 4 Ottawa 1

Tyler Kennedy had two goals and linemate Craig Adams added two assists in the Pittsburgh Penguins' 4-1 win over the Ottawa Senators yesterday.

Bill Guerin, in the first, and Jordan Staal, in the third, also scored for the Penguins (5-1-0). Marc-Andre Fleury made 30 saves to earn his fifth win in as many starts.

Milan Michalek had the lone goal for the Senators (3-2-0), who had their three-game winning streak stopped. Pascal Leclaire made 24 saves in the loss.

Down 3-1 after 40 minutes, the Senators pressed the Penguins hard in the first half of the third period before Staal put the game out of reach scoring on a rebound at 9:54.

A long five-on-three advantage late in the game for the Senators produced nothing.

Kennedy broke a 1-1 tie with two second-period goals, the second of which Leclaire simply missed. Kennedy took a pass from Matt Cooke and drove down the right side before beating Leclaire with a shot to the far side from two feet above the faceoff circle.

Jays bolster front office

BLUE JAYS Alex Anthopoulos has continued his makeover of the Toronto Blue Jays' front office by luring Dana Brown from the Washington Nationals to serve as a special assistant to the general manager.

The hiring, which is expected to be announced today, was confirmed yesterday by a source requesting anonymity to The Canadian Press. Brown mentored Anthopoulos while both were with the Montreal Expos at the start of the decade, but remained with the club as it moved to Washington, serving as its director of amateur scouting.

Anthopoulos, a Montreal native, joined the Blue Jays after the 2003 season, climbing up the organization until he was named general manager in place of the fired J.P. Ricciardi a week and a half ago.

Brown was hired as Expos scouting director in 2002 after working eight years in scouting for the Pittsburgh Pirates. Players drafted under his watch include all-star third baseman Ryan Zimmerman, Chad Cordero, Chris Marrero, Ross Detwiler and, this past summer, Stephen Strasburg.

Getzlaf siblings no rivals

Ryan's older brother Chris emerging as CFL star with Saskatchewan

STEPHEN JOHNSON
for Metro Canada

It wouldn't be surprising if Chris Getzlaf felt a twinge of sibling rivalry. His younger brother Ryan has already won a Stanley Cup, signed a multi-million dollar contract, and appears to be a shoe-in for the Olympic hockey team. But Chris is an outstanding athlete in his own right and does not harbour any jealousy.

Getzlaf is a starting slotback with the Saskatchewan Roughriders. The road to the Canadian Football League was not an easy one for the six-foot, 200-pound University of Regina product.

mediate starter," said Getzlaf. "I have always had to work hard and prove myself to the coaches."

Getzlaf did have an opportunity to start in 2006 with the University of Regina Rams. He played well enough to attract the attention of CFL scouts and was drafted by the Hamilton Tiger-Cats in 2007.

After a brief stint with the Ticats, Getzlaf was traded to his hometown Saskatchewan Roughriders. "It was a dream come true to return home and play with the Riders.

Every young kid in Regina thinks about playing with the Saskatchewan Roughriders."

Even though Getzlaf saw limited playing time with the Roughriders in 2007, he was lucky enough to be a part of a team that won the Grey Cup. He saw more duty in 2008 starting five games with 15 receptions for 244 yards.

So far, the 2009 season has been Getzlaf's most productive. To date, the slotback has caught 28 passes for 346 yards and four touchdowns.

While many players would be content playing for their hometown team and being a starter, Getzlaf has his sights set higher. "I would like to get to the point where the quarterback and coaches want to throw to me in the clutch situations. Eventually, I am hoping to win Canadian player of the year."

When Getzlaf is not playing football, he keeps in close contact with his brother attending hockey games in Anaheim, Calif. He describes their relationship as one of healthy competition.

"Growing up, Ryan and I played sports together on a fairly regular basis," he said. "Even though I'm a couple of years older we even played on the same

Canadian food, eh?

Be proud, eat homegrown nutritious commodities

CELIA MILNE
for Metro Canada

We're all familiar with Chinese food and Italian food, but what is Canadian food?

David McInnes says it's a wide variety of fresh, healthy foods.

Instead of poutine and beaver tails, Canada should be known for homegrown, nutritious commodities: Fish from our lakes and oceans, grains grown on our prairies, and fruits and vegetables in abundance all over the country.

Promoting the Canadian diet is good for health and good for agriculture, says

McInnes, who is president and CEO of the Canadian Agri-Food Policy Institute (CAPI) in Ottawa. "We need to recognize that, hey, we do have foods in Canada that are safe, healthy and are produced in a sustainable way," he says.

"We have a Canadian diet and we should be proud of what we produce and eat."

The idea of the "Canadian diet" was developed by CAPI as a starting point to help counter the rising epidemic of obesity in this country and boost the ailing farming industry. Here's how it might work:

- Get people to stop eating junk food and turn to fresher, locally-grown food

- salmon, sweet potatoes, carrots, berries, whole grains, spinach, dairy products such as milk, yogurt and cheese, flax, lean meats, and a wide array of other fruits and vegetables.

- Invest in advanced research to find out which foods promote health.

For instance, what are the health benefits of oats and barley? Take that research from the laboratory to the marketplace.

- Support innovation in the agriculture industry.
- Improve the regulatory environment for farmers.

- Promote strategies that drive up exports.

The concept sprouted wings, says McInnes, "generating considerable national interest in newspapers, radio and the trade press."

Dietitians have been promoting this way of eating for years.

"Canada produces some of the world's healthiest and most versatile ingredients. Many, such as canola, salmon, pulses (dried beans and lentils) and flax provide general health benefits by helping to reduce the risk of developing chronic diseases like heart disease and cancer, while others have more specific benefits," says Mary Sue Waisman, a registered dietitian who works with Dietitians of Canada.

Spinach contains lutein which may help keep eyes healthy

Instead of poutine and beaver tails, Canada should be known for its homegrown, nutritious commodities, such as local fish, grains, fruits and vegetables.

SEASONAL FLU, H1N1 AND YOUR TOOTHBRUSH

At the best of times, the human mouth is home to more types of germs and bacteria than pretty much any other part of the body. Perhaps this is not a pleasant image, but true nonetheless.

The human mouth maintains a constant temperature and high degree of humidity. That makes it the ideal breeding ground for the more than 100 species of bacteria that inhabit the various crevices of the mouth.

In truth, most of them are actually beneficial for us. They help fend off other invading forms of bacteria and even help breakdown some of the foods that get caught between our teeth.

Nonetheless, we cannot rely on these "friendly" bacteria to keep our teeth clean. That is why brushing and flossing is so important. Now the floss, of course, is discarded after a single use. But what about the toothbrush?

Most of us simply rinse off the toothbrush and return it to the same place we always store it. In a family, it is common for more than one toothbrush to be stored together... often sharing much of the bacteria they just removed from your mouth... waiting for the next time they go back

And at this time of year, not only are they sharing the bacteria that is found in our mouths all year. Our toothbrushes may be sharing the seasonal flu or even H1N1.

Think about it. Just because you are sick with some form of the flu does not mean you should stop looking after your oral hygiene. Brushing should continue. But when one member of the family is ill, the toothbrush can be the tool that allows the flu to spread to others.

That is why we recommend that you isolate your toothbrush, as well as yourself, when you have the flu. And when you recover, you should discard the brush you used while ill... just to make sure the flu has been removed from your house.

Once everyone is healthy, you should still take care of your toothbrush to make sure it does not become the permanent home of some nasty and harmful forms of bacteria. Running your toothbrush through the dishwasher has proven to be one of the most effective methods of removing bacteria. If you do not have a dishwasher, placing it in boiling water is another simple and effective solution. Of course, if you use an electric toothbrush, it is only the brush head that should be washed or boiled. Read the operations manual for maintenance and care instructions.

These are easy and cost-effective ways to make sure your toothbrush continues to be the tool you need to look after your oral health – not a mechanism whereby harmful germs and perhaps even the flu are introduced into your body.

Make sure you add these simple steps to your oral health routine. Because keeping your toothbrush clean and bacterial free is a healthy habit... and healthier habits lead to healthier lives.

Morality or justice?

Prostitution laws don't protect the vulnerable in our society

The J Spot

Josey Vogels

metronews.ca/thejspot

The polarization of the debate surrounding the current court case challenging Canada's prostitution laws raises difficult questions about the role morality should play in lawmaking.

Toronto dominatrix Terri-Jean Bedford and prostitutes Valerie Scott, 51, and Amy Lebovitch, 30, are asking Ontario's Superior Court of Justice to decriminalize prostitution, saying current laws make it dangerous for women working in the sex trade.

Opponents claim decriminalization of prostitution condones the selling of sex and that is wrong.

But is it really up to the law to decide whether the selling of sex is right or wrong?

Originally outlawed under Victorian social-hygiene-policy-based "vagrancy laws" — which also applied to jugglers, loafers and other general undesirables — this was considered discriminatory when Canada's first criminal code was passed in 1892. So to satisfy moral objection to prostitution, the buying and selling of sex was made legal, but "soliciting" was not. Which is sort of like trying to be a door-to-door salesman who isn't allowed to go door-to-door.

Is it really up to the law to decide whether the selling of sex is right or wrong, questions columnist Josey Vogels.

Also, pretty much every activity surrounding prostitution — communicating, bawdy houses, and pimping, to name a few — is illegal. But, despite all this, the sex trade continues to flourish. In other words, outlawing prostitution doesn't make it go away.

Besides, if you think prostitution should be outlawed because you have a moral objection to the commercialization of sex, well, in today's society, there isn't much that isn't turned into a commodity. Why is sex so sacred it can't be bought or sold?

It's anyone's moral right to frown on prostitution, but morality doesn't justify putting women in danger. The law is intended to protect the vulnerable in our society.

According to Statistics Canada, prostitution is in the top three most risky professions along with cops and cab drivers. Given that, I'd say these (mostly) women fit the description.

Still, prostitution laws achieve the opposite. Because "communicating" is illegal, street workers have to jump in cars with strangers to negotiate their terms. The streets aren't safe, but because bawdy houses are illegal, they can't go indoors. And one need only look at the Picton Pig Farm case for more proof of this job's hazards.

There should be legal limits on sex, but they should be there to protect vulnerable people, not to reflect or dictate our sexual morality. To look to the law to tell us what is healthy when it comes to sexuality is just wrong.

Making healthy food choices on the go

DENISE SURETTE
for Metro Canada

Everyone has those days where eating on the run is a necessity.

But for some, skipping meals and grabbing the quickest thing around is a lifestyle that can't be avoided. However, your busy schedule shouldn't stop you from eating a healthy diet.

"It's more common than most people think," says Stefanie DePaolis, registered dietitian and owner of Menu For Movement. "People struggle to find healthy alternatives when they're busy."

DePaolis says its important to eat something, regardless of how healthy you may think it is, than to skip a meal. She says eating every three to four hours is important to keep blood sugars at a normal level.

Trail mix, granola bars, yogurt cups and fruit are all good options for a quick and nutritious breakfast.

She says even if it's a microwave dinner or something from a fast food joint, don't feel guilty about eating at regular intervals.

If you find yourself running out the door without breakfast on a regular basis, plan ahead, says DePaolis. Keeping food in your office or at home that takes no preparation is the best way to avoid skipping meals.

"Trail mix, a yogurt cup or fruit are great options," says DePaolis. "Try to think of these things ahead of time."

She also says granola bars are a great way to keep from going hungry, and are easy to keep without a fridge. But the bars should meet a healthy standard. DePaolis says check the nutritional information on the box and look for bars with at least three to four grams of fibre, less than eight grams of sugar and it should have less than three grams of fat per bar.

If you find yourself at the food court or at a fast food restaurant for lunch, DePaolis says a simple sandwich is a great choice. Avoiding sandwiches with a high content of mayonnaise is important. She advises skipping tuna, egg or chicken salad to avoid a mayo overdose.

So how can you take advantage of the healthy Canadian diet? Metro asked the Canadian Agri-Food Policy Institute, along with the Dietitians of Canada, to come up with some purely down-home ideas for our kitchens.

- Maple Marinated Salmon: Grilled on a Cedar Plank; top with a blueberry salsa made with chopped blueberries, red bell and jalapeno peppers and apples with fresh mint and a drizzle of canola oil and apple juice.
- Backyard Garden Salad: Made with spinach, romaine and local chopped veggies topped with finely diced Oka cheese and your favorite lower fat vinaigrette.
- Cauliflower au Gratin: Tender cauliflower topped with melted Canadian mozzarella cheese.

Delicious flavours for Diwali

If you rolled a bit of Christmas, New Year's Eve and Thanksgiving into one, then catered the affair with heaps of sweets and savory snacks, you'd begin to get a taste for what it means to celebrate Diwali, India's best known festival, which this year falls on this Saturday.

Metro nabbed a few more delicious and simple recipes from Everyday Indian: 100 Fast, Fresh, and Healthy Recipes by Bal Arneson. After publishing the Vancouver author's terrific Tandoori Quesadillas earlier this year (which can be found at metronews.ca, if you enter the recipe name into the Search field), we just had to go back for more.

As Bal says, "... You shouldn't have to go to a restaurant to enjoy the great flavours of Indian food, nor should you view an Indian meal as an occasional treat... you can take any recipe in this book, any day of the week, and create a delicious, healthy dish in 20 to 25 minutes."

Everyday Indian (Whitecap Books) is available now.

Salmon Paneer Cakes

MAKES 6-8 PIECES

Serve with Mint Chutney, Peach Chutney or Yam and Red Onion Chutney.

INGREDIENTS:

- One 6 oz can salmon, drained and liquid squeezed out
- 3/4 cup grated paneer (see below)
- 1/2 cup low-fat plain yogurt
- 1/4 cup finely chopped red onion
- 1/4 cup chickpea flour
- 1 tsp garam masala (see below)
- 1/2 tsp salt

• 2 Tbsp grapeseed oil

METHOD:

Combine all the ingredients except the oil in a bowl and mix until the flour is evenly distributed. Make small cakes (1-inch patties). Heat the oil in a non-stick skillet over medium heat and pan-fry the patties on both sides until golden brown.

- Note: Adding 1 tsp of dried fenugreek leaves, 1 tsp of chana masala, and 1 Tbsp of finely chopped ginger gives an enticing aroma to the cakes. You can also sprinkle fresh lemon juice over the cakes just before serving to brighten all of the flavours.

Homemade Paneer

INGREDIENTS:

- 1 gallon (4 L) 2% milk
- 1/2 cup plain white vinegar
- One 20-inch-square piece of cheesecloth

METHOD:

Bring the milk to a boil in a large pot. Add the vinegar and stir until the mixture separates into solids and liquid. Drain the mixture through cheesecloth. Wrap the curd with the cheesecloth, place in a sieve, and put a heavy weight on it, such as a cookie jar or rice container. Let the water drain completely for 20 minutes.

Remove the cheesecloth and cut the paneer into small cubes. Use immediately or refrigerate in a covered container for up to 5 days.

- Note: Pan-frying helps to keep the paneer cubes from falling apart. Place 2 Tbsp grapeseed oil in a non-stick pan over medium heat. When the oil is hot, gently place the paneer in the pan and cook until golden-brown. Gently flip the pieces and brown the other side. Pan-fried paneer freezes and thaws very well without crumbling.

bling.

Garam Masala

MAKES 1 CUP

INGREDIENTS:

- 1/2 cup coriander seeds
- 1/2 cup cumin seeds
- 1/4 cup dried curry leaves
- 1/4 cup black peppercorns
- 1/4 cup mustard seeds
- 3 whole cloves
- 2 black cardamom pods
- 2 cinnamon sticks, each 3 inches long
- 2 bay leaves

METHOD:

Preheat the oven to 325°F. Combine all the ingredients, spread them on a rimmed baking sheet, and toast in the oven for 15 minutes. Let cool and process to a fine powder in a grinder, such as a coffee grinder reserved for this purpose. Stored in an airtight container in a cool place, it should keep well for 3 months.

Diwali in brief

THE CELEBRATION

The legends behind Diwali — a word taken from the Sanskrit word dipavali meaning "row of lights" — vary by region in India, but people of every faith line windows and doorways with small clay or silver oil lamps, and trim homes, shops and businesses with brightly coloured lights. Firecrackers pop and screech from early morning. Businesses close their fiscal year and open new books. Diwali also is a time for visiting friends and family, and the delicate, time-consuming savories — which are easily made in large quantities — are exchanged between homes.

Even if you're a dedicated sun worshipper, it's still hard not to love fall. While there may be a chill in the air, with the leaves changing and the harvest in full swing at farms and vineyards across the country, there's no better time to be Canadian.

Autumn is the season where fresh produce really influences what happens in the kitchen with hearty stews, game meats and plenty of rustic comfort food dominating the dinner table.

Though I've never been one to relegate a certain style of wine to a spot on the calendar some just echo the personality of a season so well that there's a real unifying connection.

The juice from France's Rhone Valley taste like October — especially its reds. They're typically easier drinking than most French with wines like M. Chapoutier's 2007 Belleruche Côtes du Rhône ($17.80 - $19.29), offering a mouth full of licorice, spice and dark fruit, thanks to its blend of grenache and syrah.

The viognier grape also calls the Rhone home, but Chile is working wonders with it as well. With forward leachy fruit and a lingering white pepper bite Cono Sur's 2008 Viognier ($9.99 - $11.99) is a tasty fall weather white.

Prices reflect the range across the country. Some products may not be available in all provinces.

Hugh Dillon, former Headstone turned TV star, has often depended on the musical muse to lead him in the right direction.

"I got in the habit of songwriting long ago, it was consistent when everything else wasn't consistent," the 46-year-old explains, referring to when his hard rocking group disbanded in 2003.

Works Well With Others, his new solo album out on Warner Music today, features a couple of songs heard on the two shows he stars in, Flashpoint and Durham County. The music is muscular yet introspective, filled with clear-headed determination. What did he intend with the title? "Well, it was something written on my report cards when I was a kid until one day it wasn't," he says. The angry young punk has come full circle.

Produced by Paul Langlois of the Tragically Hip, the album is a farewell to the boozed up addict who didn't think he'd see age 40. First song Friends of

"We've been together 21 years. I wrote the song Puzzle I Am for her. It's very different for me, no rage, and no heavy rock 'n' roll. It was liberating."

This month the Gemini-nominated actor/musician starts shooting the next season of Durham County in Montreal. Come January he'll be in Toronto revving up for another season of Flashpoint. He hopes to do a few live music gigs in December and possibly tour next spring or summer.

The Proposal

Director: Anne Fletcher

REVERSE SEXISM is at work in this screwball comedy starring Sandra Bullock and Canada's Ryan Reynolds, a summer hit that provided major career boosts to both.

Bullock is the poor man's Meryl Streep in her role of New York book editor Margaret, who boots around and then seeks to wed her assistant, Andrew, played by Reynolds.

Margaret is an uppity Canadian — irony alert! — whose U.S. residency is about to be revoked by an overzealous immigration agent (Denis O'Hare). She conspires a shotgun marriage with U.S.-born Andrew to save her status.

City slicker Margaret has to cope with the Alaskan foibles of Andrew's kooky kin, including his meddling mom (Mary Steenburgen), gruff dad (Craig T. Nelson) and kinky granny (Betty White, ever the scene thief), whose 90th birthday occasions the trip.

The twist is that Reynolds, who normally does the hip cynic, is playing a pathetic pup heels to every cruel whim of his employer. But the freshness only lasts until the film defaults to rom-com formula. Nobody who ever attended a date movie will be surprised by what happens, but The Proposal has low expectations and good vibes in its favour.

Extras include an alternative ending, deleted scenes and commentaries by Fletcher and Chiarelli.

Drag Me to Hell

Director: Sam Raimi

APPLAUDING SAM RAIMI for returning to his schlock horror roots is a bit like cheering a Big Mac for tasting the same as it always does.

Sure, it's fun that Raimi took a break from counting his Spider-Man loot to bang out a quickie thriller strongly reminiscent of his Evil Dead beginnings. But couldn't Drag Me to Hell be just a little bit more imaginative?

This time, the dead-dodging protagonist is a woman (Alison Lohman), rather than the hapless hero played so memorably by Bruce Campbell.

Lohman's character, Christine, is just too dumb to warrant the supernatural abuse she endures after running afoul of gypsy crone Mrs. Ganush (Lorna Raver). For acting like a bureaucrat rather than a saint, Christine's punishment is to spend the next 90 minutes dodging the curse of the Lamia, a body-snatching entity from hell that holds big-time grudges and won't take no for an answer.

The thrills are good, but Drag Me to Hell isn't as funny as it should be. Extras include video production diaries and the unrated director's cut.

In brief

TECHNOLOGY He may be married to Queen Elizabeth II, but Prince Philip has the same technological troubles as millions of commoners. The 88-year-old prince has bemoaned the complexity of television remote controls, saying attempts to record programs often end up with him lying on the floor with a flashlight, a magnifying glass and an instruction manual. The comments came in an interview posted on Buckingham Palace's YouTube channel.

ROOTS It seems Matt Damon and Ben Affleck are more than childhood pals and Hollywood collaborators. According to the New England Genealogical Society, they're also tenth cousins, once removed. Society researchers say both Damon and Affleck are descended from William Knowlton Jr., a bricklayer who came to the U.S. from England in the 1630s

London Hospital

No fancy electronic equipment in this hospital drama. It's set a century ago, when many of the diseases and treatments were different, but the human drama hasn't changed much. In season two, an explosion taxes the hospital's resources and ratchets up the tension in its neighborhood in London's East End. 9 PM on 2 TVO

Amy gets new breasts? Sources say yes, yes, yes

SHE'S A BIG GIRL NOW Part of Amy Winehouse's plan for a comeback is apparently an in-depth visit to a plastic surgeon. Sources tell the Sun that the Rehab singer recently dropped $52,000 US on cosmetic surgery — including breast augmentation.

"She looks amazing, like a new woman," a source says. "We all feared she'd fallen off the wagon when she came in. Then we saw her bouncing around with these huge boobs which stand out as she's so tiny and skinny." It also turns out Wine-house's bid to clean up her act by relaxing in St. Lucia earlier this year came with quite a price tag. The singer reportedly spent roughly $14 million US on her seven-month stay on the Caribbean island, according to OK! Magazine.

"Amy's voice has made her a fortune, but her lifestyle costs a lot to maintain," a source says. "There is still cash coming in from royalties. But a new album or tour would really help top up her coffers."

Cruise-ing with Catholicism

MOM KNOWS BEST Suri Cruise is ready to start preschool, and it turns out she'll be attending Catholic school, according to the Daily Mail. Despite dad Tom Cruise's devotion to Scientology, Suri is reportedly being raised Catholic like mom Katie Holmes.

"Katie has been listening to her parents who are devout Catholics. She is not convinced by Scientology," a source says.

Young Suri is set to attend the Catholic Charities Yawkey Centre For Early Education And Learning in Boston while Tom is in the area filming a movie.

Javier wrapped around her finger?

FROM SPAIN WITH LOVE Though Penelope Cruz and Javier Bardem have been cagey about publicly acknowledging their romance, a stunning diamond ring on Cruz's finger at the Broken Embraces premiere in New York seemed to confirm rumours of their engagement.

"She has achieved a very handsome, good boyfriend, two Oscar nominations, one Oscar and the respect and admiration of her profession," director Pedro Almadovar said.

Tara sheds insecurities, and clothes, for Playboy

GO FIGURE Tara Reid has overcome her physical insecurities and stripped off for an upcoming issue of Playboy magazine, according to U.S. reports.

The American Pie star underwent a botched liposuction procedure in 2004 and vowed never to take off her clothes for the men's magazine — because she was too insecure about her figure, female-first.co.uk reports.

Reid told reporters, "I know there are problems with my stomach. There are bumps on it, it's uneven."

However, the 33 year old is now flaunting her figure, according to In Touch magazine.

She reportedly posed entirely nude for a Playboy shoot at a private residence in Santa Monica, California earlier this month.

A source says, "She was a bit insecure about her body when they first started. She looked great and finally got into the groove."

Eddie mum about LeAnn on set

SUCH A PROFESSIONAL Eddie Cibrian's personal life might make headlines in the press, but on the set of CSI: Miami, his costar tells usmagazine.com that he keeps quiet about new girlfriend LeAnn Rimes.

"I know he's going through a lot of personal stuff right now, but he's super-professional and doesn't bring any of it to work," Eva La Rue told Us. La Rue, who plays a DNA analyst on the CBS drama, previously worked with Cibrian, 36,

Third Watch, in which they played a married couple.

"I know he's a great guy," she told Us of the star, adding that it has been "really fun" working on the series' eighth season. Will Rimes guest star on the show? "I don't know," La Rue said, laughing.

Daisy pranks cruel: Jessica

PEOPLE ARE SUCH DOGS Jessica Simpson doesn't appreciate the false information her loved ones have received from pranksters claiming her lost Maltipoo Daisy is alive, usmagazine.com reports.

"People who have been contacting my family and friends saying that Daisy has been found," the star, 29, Twittered on Sunday. "Untrue. People are so cruel ... please respect her memory."

Daisy, the five-year-old dog who was a gift from ex-husband Nick Lachey, was dragged away by a coyote in her Los Angeles backyard in September. After a week of searching, Daisy was never recovered.

Metro Recipe of the Day

Scalloped Potatoes

INGREDIENTS:

3 tbsp (45 ml) butter, divided
1 tbsp (15 ml) all-purpose flour
1 tsp (5 ml) salt
1/4 (1 ml) pepper
1-1/2 cups (375 ml) milk
4 cups thinly sliced peeled potatoes
1 medium onion, finely chopped
1 small green pepper, finely chopped
1/2 cup (125 ml) dry bread crumbs
3/4 cup (175 ml) shredded cheddar cheese

METHOD:

1. In a small pot, melt 2 tbsp (25 ml) butter; stir in flour, salt and pepper. Gradually stir in milk. Bring to boil over medium heat; cook and stir 2 minutes or until thickened.

2. In a greased 1-1/2-qt. (1.5 l) baking dish, arrange half the potatoes, onion and green pepper in layers; cover with half of sauce. Repeat layers. Cover and bake at 350 F (180 C) for 35 minutes.
3. Melt remaining butter; combine with bread crumbs and sprinkle over potatoes. Bake, uncovered, 40 minutes longer or until potatoes are tender. Sprinkle with cheddar cheese. Let stand 5 minutes before serving.

ARIES MARCH 21-APRIL 20

Listen to what friends have to say to you over the next 24 hours, because they can see things that you can't. Adopt their positive attitude, too.

LIBRA SEPT 23-OCT 23

Play to your strengths today and you'll move ahead swiftly with a project close to your heart. Romantically and creatively, you can do no wrong.

TAURUS APRIL 21-MAY 21

You're on the threshold of a breakthrough, one that wouldn't have been possible a short time ago. Nothing's beyond you when you put your mind to it.

SCORPIO OCT 24-NOV 22

This is the perfect day to patch up a relationship that's been less than satisfactory in recent months. But you must ditch your pride and say sorry first.

GEMINI MAY 22-JUNE 21

You need a change of perspective or direction, and you'll get that today whether you like it or not. Chances are you'll like it very much indeed.

SAGITTARIUS NOV 23-DEC 21

Something important is about to happen in your life, something that will make you smile. There is a good chance travel is involved.

CANCER JUNE 22-JULY 22

If you find yourself wishing you were someone else, you're wasting your time. Focus on making a better job of who you are.

CAPRICORN DEC 22-JAN 20

There is a real possibility you'll come into money, but there are other ways to improve your finances. The most obvious is to sell off some of your things.

LEO JULY 23-AUG 23

Your problems are not as bad as you seem to think and today you will realize you have been worrying for no good reason.

AQUARIUS JAN 21-FEB 18

Recently, it may have seemed your long run of good fortune was at an end, but today will help you to believe that Lady Luck has not deserted you.

VIRGO AUG 24-SEPT 22

You may be tempted to change something that's worked for you, and it could be time for a change. At work you'll be open to new ideas and methods.

PISCES FEB 19-MARCH 20

If you find your approach to a personal problem isn't working, tackle it from a different angle. Think creatively, and dig yourself out of a hole.
